

This text should be flowing past a tall orange rectangle on the left side of the page. In this case, it is the block which has been floated to the left.

Control line: this drops below the left float.

---

This text should be flowing past a tall orange rectangle on the right side of the page. In this case, it is the block which has been floated to the right.

